1. What is a prime membership?

A prime membership provides individuals and/or schools/churches with access to a wide variety of materials that will better equip parents, church leaders and educators to disciple future generations. 2. How can an individual or organization become a prime member?

To become a prime member simply go to www.kingdomeducationministries.com. Click on any of the buttons "Become a Prime Member". Complete the information form. If an organization joins, choose a generic username and password as it will be shared by all staff members. (This is very important!)
3. How can an individual or organization pay for the membership?

Membership fees can be paid through an already established PayPal account or by credit card. If paying by credit card, you will be asked to setup a PayPal account. However, once you set this up, you can use a credit card to subscribe.
4. What are the options for becoming a prime member?

There are two prime membership options. One option is for an individual/family to become a member. The second option is for schools, churches or other organizations to become a member.
5. Who can access the material through the different membership options?

When an individual or family becomes a prime member, all members of that individual's family can access the materials on the site.
When an organization becomes a prime member, all paid staff and board members are granted full access to the subscription site.
6. How can individuals access the material through an institution's prime membership?

When a school/church becomes a prime member, it will setup a user name and a password. The organization's user name and password can be shared with all paid staff and board members in order to login to the site. Staff members or board members are not allowed to change an institution's username and/or password.
7. How can a school or church use its prime membership?

An institution can access and use the materials on the subscription site any way it deems most beneficial. Some examples include:

 - Large group sessions where videos can be shown on a screen followed by discussion opportunities
 - Assign certain videos to be watched individually and then discuss them in a group setting such as a faculty or board meeting
 - Assign certain videos to be watched individually and then write summaries to be submitted to administration

- Divide the staff into work groups and assign a different video to be watched by each group. Then each group will report/present their findings to the entire staff
8. Can individuals earn CEUs from the materials provided through a prime membership?
- Since various organizations have different CEU requirements, organizations are free to setup their own CEU structure. This can include:
- Determining what videos and/or other materials will be covered
 - Determining the objectives that will be achieved through the study of the determined materials
 - Determining the amount of time that it will take to watch/read the material and discuss the material studied.
9. Is the cost for becoming a prime membership the same for any size organization?
- It is our desire to make these materials affordable to all schools, churches and families regardless of size. Too often larger institutions are charged higher fees that end up underwriting smaller organizations. An effort has been made to make membership very affordable to all organizations, regardless of size.
10. What materials can be accessed through a prime membership?
